The Phrase that Comes from Thankful Norway People.

One kidney remedy has known merit. Norway people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Norway testimony proves it reliable.

W. O. Needham, retired farmer, Main St., Norway, Me., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the only kidney medicine I use, and they always give me relief. Sometimes, when I caught cold my kidneys were weakened. Several years ago I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I began using them. They got my kidneys working right, and when that was done, the uric poison in my system was removed. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store, and I know that they can be relied on."

Joseph Andrew's Letters.

At the close of my three days visit at Happy Camp, I bade my old playmate, Joseph Charles Swan and my new found friends, Mrs. Swan and son, Hurlbut, good-by, and started on my journey. It is a long drive. Hurlbut hit the old grey nag—a reminder to me of the old grey horse which his father used to drive. Mr. Swan, the father, used to water his stock in the winter in Oxford County through a hole cut in the ice on the river a short distance above the falls. In the early spring of 1849 or 50, before the ice broke up, the poor old nag in trying to reach the water slipped and fell into the freezing hole. Mr. Swan's loud calls for help soon brought several strong armed men to the rescue, while we five Swan and Andrews kids with our mothers gathered around and watched with open eyed wonder at the heroic struggle in the water. The housekeeper made me work like a hero to save the horse from his icy bath, which they soon did.

Mr. Swan took me to the stage station where I, the only passenger, boarded the stage, and with a kindly half-breed hunch back Indian as driver, took the back track towards home. At noon we stopped at the half way house, and as before the poor horses were left unhitched and unfed tied to a post, while the driver went to a nearby house to get a meal. A burly negro man for cook, and partook of a splendid dinner.

That night I arrived safely at Hurlbut where I enjoyed a good night's rest and early in the morning my journey, and with good horses and careful drivers had a very pleasant trip. At noon we took on two men passengers and soon gathered in another, who was waiting by the road side, and the driver went on a jolly old Frenchman joined our party.

Soon after leaving the noon station we met a team loaded with goods for some miners camp. The driver kindly pried open one of the boxes and presented our driver with a quart bottle of whiskey. Being a Teetotaler I declined their kind offer of a drink. About every half hour the bottle was passed around and was empty before we reached Hurlbut, where we arrived about 10 o'clock. I again enjoyed the hospitality of the excellent hotel presided over by a lady, and found the charges much more reasonable than I had expected. A nice room 50 cents and meals 35 cents each.

At three o'clock I boarded the main bound for Salem, Oregon, 328 miles distant. Our train soon crossed the state line, and drawn by three monster engines, climbed the Siskiyou mountains to an altitude of 4195 feet above sea level. While descending down below a furious snow equal was so raging on the summit. Having crossed the great divide, our train glided on its way through the beautiful city of Ashland, and down into the famous Rogue River valley.

As we soon drew its sable curtains around us and shut out the view, I will again quote from my little book "Over the Range Rogue River Valley". We are now in the Rogue River Valley, and are following the stream in a downward course. The valley averages about three miles in width, with high hills on each side covered with a strong growth of grass, and in places heavily timbered. The products of the valley are wheat, oats, fruit, dairying and hunting can be found here of the best quality. The stations that follow Medford are: Gold Hill, Grant's Pass, Marlette, Leland, Wolf Creek and Dillard.

For a stretch of over one hundred miles, and fifty miles from Grant's Pass, the country presents a wonderful panorama of grand and beautiful scenery. Mountains are all around us. To the right the Cascade range. To the left the Coast Range. Gorges below us. Canyons below us. Little valleys of entrancing loveliness are crossed; sparkling springs abound; forests of oak and pines, of hemlock and madrones are threaded; in a word, the variety is infinite, the beauty indescribable.

Early Monday morning my train pulled into Salem, the capital city of Oregon. I had an old South Dakota friend living here, who I soon hunted up and on whom I made a morning call. He had another friend living on the Oregon seventeen miles distant with whom I wished to visit so I made my first visit with him, going by train and stage to Sublimity, where he met me and took me home four miles distant. Mr. Hill, one of my old Dakota friends and neighbors in the early settlements. He was one of the pioneer settlers of Old Swan Lake, and built the first store there nearly forty years ago. He and his good wife came to Oregon some fourteen years ago. He now owns a hundred acres hop, stock and fruit farm. He has a twenty five acre hop yard kept in first class condition which was an eye opener to me. It is an expensive job to prepare a yard like that, but when once completed and planted, it is not much more labor to cultivate than the same in corn.

In starting the yard large heavy posts ten to fourteen feet in length, four enough so that they can be reset, are set about twenty-eight feet apart each way. Then a heavy wire is strung along the top of each post. Then again cross wires are strung above each row of hops. Then a heavy twine much like binding twine is fastened to the hop vine at the ground and to the overhead wire up which the vine climbs to the supporting wires over head.

Hop picking season is a busy and interesting time. Entire families come from the cities, they bring their tents and camp out, and have a gay and happy time while adding dollars to their bank account.

Mr. Hill has a large drying house heated by a furnace where the hops after being dried are baled and are then ready for market. He also raises large quantities of apples, cherries and small fruit, which he sells for the cash value because of distance from market. He said that probably a hundred bushels of fine time cherries rotted on the ground each year, because it did not pay to market them.

I visited with Mr. and Mrs. Hill two days and enjoyed every moment of the time, reviewing old times when pioneers were living in Old Swan Lake and Spring Valley, when the country was new and we were young, when we were all poor together, living on a small piece of land, and struggling times with drought, floods, grasshoppers, prairie fires and blizzards. Yet with all our trials I find that most of the old settlers living agree with me that those pioneer days were among the most pleasant and joyous days of our lives. From Mr. Hill's I returned to Salem where I visited a day and night with my friend, Samuel White, a son-in-law of Mr. Hill, who was but a boy when I first knew him as a resident of Swan Lake, forty years ago. He is a carpenter by trade and was at work just across the street from Oregon's fine capital building, which I visited while waiting for Mr. White to finish his day's work, after which he took me for a long walk down and around the state penitentiary, and among other notable sights pointed out to me the spot where Tracy, the noted desperado made his escape. Salem, known locally as the Cherry City, has a population of about fifteen thousand and is a very pretty city. It is on the Willamette river, forty-seven miles south of Portland, and also met two other families of old Dakota friends who have chosen Salem as their temporary home and who seemed to be prospering.

Early the next morning I boarded my train bound for Tacoma, 189 miles distant. This was a lovely ride and very enjoyable. We passed through Portland, the metropolis of Oregon, with a population of about 100,000. I made no stop here, except to change from the Southern Pacific railroad to that of the Northern Pacific railroad, both first class roads and with kind and gentlemanly train men.

About three p. m. I arrived in Tacoma, a city of about 100,000 and following instruction, took a street car which landed me close by the home of Sewell Stearns, a cousin and one of my younger Lovell Center school boy playmates. He told me that he opened up and improved a fine large farm a few miles out of the city. A few years ago he sold this farm and is now one of the prosperous ranch owners of the city, under the firm name of S. F. Stearns & Son.

With his mother and sister Ella he first moved to Pennsylvania and about 1875 to Audubon Co., Iowa. His mother died many years ago and he stayed there for many years on one of the foremost educators of her adopted state and county. She is now serving her third consecutive two-years term, as superintendent of schools of Audubon Co. So popular is she that in the last two elections she has been the unanimous choice of the voters.

Ella and Sewell F., are a fair sample of the boys and girls that old Lovell Center has sent out into the world. They are both prosperous and popular. Sewell's wife is a true helpmate. She is a lady of culture and refinement. Their son Vergil is a chip of the old block, a strong manly young man, and their daughter Ella, who is married and lives close by is a bright winsome young lady. I had not met Sewell for more than 40 years, but he was tall and slender, he told me that he remained that way until about three years ago and only weighed about 130 pounds. About that time he began to flesh up and now weighs around 180 pounds and in form and features he reminded me very much of his maternal grandfather, Major George Russell, who was for so many years post master at Center Lovell, Maine.

Tacoma is a beautiful and fast growing city. It is on Puget sound and has a population estimated at 100,000. It is a grand harbor and vast shipping facilities, it has some of the largest saw mills in the world and has back of it a great timber, agricultural and fruit raising country.

In closing this sketch I will briefly quote again from my guide book "Over the Range." Tacoma's commanding position amongst cities of Washington has been earned step by step by a struggle in which the odds were against her. The general apprehension, justified, probably by the history of many cities and towns, that in the west all one needs to do is to stake off a few lots, build a cabin or two, select a name and a city will grow up much like the vegetable in a garden, is in no wise true of Tacoma.

When Tacoma was established other towns on Puget Sound had existed for many years, and naturally they did not extend any encouragement to a new town. Instead of receiving from the government, as in the case of many cities of the west, the exclusive and encouragement of an extensive business district, Tacoma found the older towns already in possession and ready to contest every step taken by the new claimant for public favor and support.

Figurative speaking Tacoma's first breath of life was a battle cry and although the cry was not at first very loud it was firm, full of confidence and pluck. The town did not remain long in its swaddling clothes. Its voice gained strength. At first Puget Sound only heard it.

Then it reached the ears of everybody in Washington Territory and they were pleased with it. The Pacific Northwest then realized that there was a new voice in the business world and stopped to listen, and soon the Pacific Coast was talking about it. Then the great and populous east heard Tacoma's voice, and when it said "Come," thousands responded.

Then England came thousands of miles by sea, in great ships, to learn more about Tacoma, a city whose fame had crossed the Atlantic Ocean and Japan sent tea ships to this infant's demand, and even far off Australia heard it and was so pleased that the ocean pathway between Tacoma and that continent is marked by an ever-increasing fleet of sailing ships and coming.

Tacoma helps to feed the world, helps to build the world's houses, and yet its voice is stronger than ever and is being used more than ever. The thousands of people who listened and responded to Tacoma's invitation were not disappointed and Tacoma grew and flourished, until its present commanding position was reached.

Poor Blood is Responsible for much sickness and suffering because its quality determines our resistive power. With poor blood we are languid, susceptible to colds, lack natural energy and ambition, and the gradual decline of strength makes prompt and careful treatment necessary. Drugs or alcohol cannot make blood and must be avoided. Scott's Emulsion is nature's grandest blood-maker because of its wholesome medical nourishment, so carefully predigested that it assimilates without taxing digestion and quickly increases the red corpuscles of the blood, strengthens the organs and tissues and rebuilds the whole system.

Absolutely nothing compares with Scott's Emulsion to purify and enrich the blood to overcome or avoid anaemia. It is totally free from alcohol or opiates and your health demands the purity of Scott's.

Oxford County Baptist History.

Old History Gives Account of Denominational in This Vicinity up to 70 Years Ago. Compiled by D. C. Clark. Installment Second.

The first Baptists in Harrison were united with the church in Bridgton, but organized a separate church with 22 members in 1827. This had a notable revival in 1832. Elder R. C. Starr was pastor in 1837-1838, devoting one-half his time to the parish and greatly upbuilding it. Levi Burnham was ordained pastor June 21, 1843. The total membership was 88, of whom 63 were on the rolls in 1843.

A small Baptist church was organized at Sweden in 1824 and was dissolved in 1837. The original membership was 12, total 15, and number at dissolution 13. Josiah Houghton, a licensed preacher, succeeded in 1812 in gathering at Waterford a Baptist church of 12 members. It did not prosper, and disappeared as an organization in 1828. The total membership was 20, and the last known number was 10.

The Old Church at Norway. Baptist preachers early visited the place, with but small encouragement, but a church of 10 members was organized in 1800, the offering of the church in Paris John Wags was ordained pastor in 1806, and officiated until 1809, with small success. The church was partially supplied by neighboring pastors until Rev. John Haines was elected pastor in 1827. Mr. Haines resigned in 1836 and Rev. R. Milner was received as pastor the same year. In 1829, one of the members, John Rust, gave a lot of land for a meeting house. The church bought the discarded Universalist meeting house and had it moved to the lot. The building was still used for the church's purposes, and Mr. Milner was still pastor in 1843. The total membership is stated as 81 and the number in 1843 as 50.

Regarding conditions in Norway, Mr. Millett wrote: "The principals of a large portion of the people in town ever have been quite skeptical; consequently evangelical truth and effort have always met with serious obstacles, and the Baptists, in common with other orthodox communities, have made but slow progress. Universalism has a strong hold here."

This church organization was afterward disbanded, and its house of worship, off upper Main St., is now used as a stable by Albert F. Bassett. Mrs. Milner, widow of the pastor, died in Norway about 20 years ago. Some of the Milner descendants still live in this village. Baptist church work in Norway was revived about 20 years ago.

Paris, Woodstock and Greenwood. Among the original settlers of Paris were some Baptists from Middleboro, Mass., who early established regular Baptist services. A revival was enjoyed in 1790 under the direction of Rev. J. Potter. On Nov. 18, 1791, a church with 12 male and 16 female members was organized during a missionary visit by Rev. E. Snow of Thomaston. Rev. James Hooper was ordained the first pastor on June 25, 1798, and remained pastor 40 years, dying Dec. 25, 1842, aged 74. Caleb B. Davis, a graduate of Newton Theological Institution, was ordained assistant pastor on June 27, 1838, succeeded to the pastorate on the death of Mr. Hooper, and still held that office when Millett's history was written. The parish had at that time been energetic and prosperous almost continually since the words of praise.

"This church, located in a central point of influence, has originated several important and flourishing branches of Zion. Members were dismissed in 1802, to constitute the second church in Buckfield; in 1806, the church in Norway; in 1824, church in Poland; in 1827, the church in Hallowell; in 1828, the church in Woodstock and Greenwood; in 1828, church in Hamlin's Gore; in 1829, church in Woodstock and Paris; in 1830, church in Lincoln, Penobscot county."

Had the historian been writing at the present time he would have added at least one more church as the offspring of this old parish on Paris Hill, that being the Baptist church at South Paris.

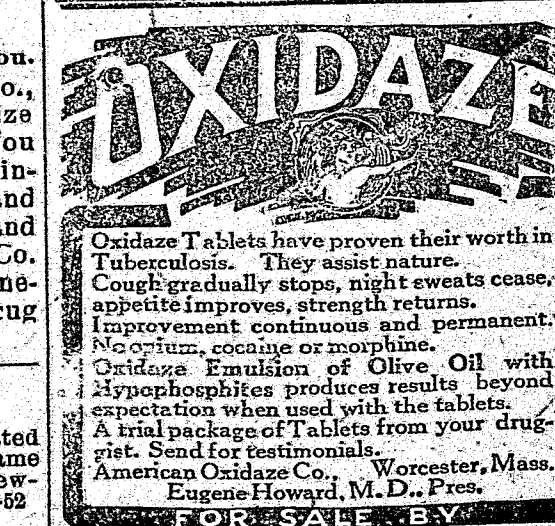

The membership of old church at organization in 1791 was 23, the total to 1843 was 498, and the number in that year was 201.

Hamlin's Grant or Hamlin's Gore. The history says: "A church by this name was constituted in February, 1828. Several of its original members had previously been members of the church at Paris. Ransom Dunham has been their pastor since 1835." The statistical table gives the original number of members as 55, total as 128 and number in 1837 as 87.

Woodstock and Greenwood church. The history says: "This church was gathered in 1828. In 1843 they enjoyed a portion of the labors of Elder Reuben Milner, and were much revived. The membership at organization numbered 39 total 66, and in 1858 there were 38. Paris and Woodstock church. Of this the history says: "It was organized March, 1827, and in September had 25 members. In 1833, in 'connection' with the Methodist, they built a house of worship. Here they worship a part of the time. In 1831, they were blessed with a revival meeting which added 12 to their number, and another in 1842. The total membership was then, as 79, and the number in 1843 as 68."

Maxin and Lapham's History of Paris and Greenwood give information as to the locations of these churches. Paris and Woodstock church was at Paris "Harbor" beside Woodstock. The Woodstock and Greenwood church never owned a house of worship, and its meetings were usually held at the Bryant schoolhouse in Greenwood, though sometimes at the Whitman schoolhouse in Woodstock or in private houses. The Hamlin's Gore church, located in the northern part of Woodstock, also never had a house of worship, but met in schoolhouses, private houses, etc. The Woodstock and Greenwood church and the Hamlin's Gore church, together with a portion of the membership of the Woodstock and Paris church, merged in 1843 into a new organization, the Bryant's Pond Baptist church which soon built a meeting house and is still active.

Diseases of Children.

I find that worms is one of the most common of children's diseases—either pin-worms or stomach worms.

These parasites attack the stomach and bowels and make their presence felt through deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, of fensive breath, hard and full tongue, belly, pale face of leadish tint, Truac mark eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

For over 60 years, Dr. Truac's Elixir, my father's discovery, has been the standard remedy for worms and stomach disorders. Take no chances, but use the time-tried remedy—Dr. Truac's Elixir, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. At all dealers, 35c, 50c and $1.00. Advice free. Write.

Auburn, Me. Dr. Truac
